Both Josiane's parents work, so we have only been paying her tuition for the past three years. Her grades have been consistently good. We now face the decision of whether to support her at the Master's level in law. Her parents have separated, which may mean greater financial hardship.

Discussing her future.

Josiane is at the same university as Bénédicte, but she had good grades in her first year of law and is doing well in her second. (Solidarité)

Josiane Nana is also a first year law student. Both her parents work, so we pay only her tuition. She is living far from the university with an aunt who makes her do housework. She's unhappy, but we said we couldn't help with that.

Josiane, left, and Bénédicte attend the same university and seem to be striking up a friendship.
