

2018

Safiatou finished two years of teacher training in 2017. We've been paying for preparatory courses for the next test for government service in May 2018. Her husband Adama finished his training as a school administrator; he was financed by the Government and automatically received employment in October 2017; after a year of national service, he will begin earning a salary in September 2018, so there is financial relief in sight. They have a son, Samir, now 4.

Samir, Safiatou and Adama.

2017

Safiatu is in her second and last year of training as a primary school teacher. She is married and has a two-year-old son. Her husband is studying school administration at the University of Koudougou. She is spending most of her second year practice teaching. She will take her final exams in June. Will take the national competitive exam for public service in August.
(Recommended by Odile Pagezy.)

2016

Safiatu Sanogo is beginning a two-year program of training for primary school teachers. Her husband hadn't been doing much, but since Safiatu starting going to school he did so too. He's in a school administration training program. His school provides housing, so they live with their 15-month-old son Samir in a two-room apartment.

